

School NewsWolfcast brings in new technology

by Emilee Guernsey

In the past couple of weeks, The Wolfcast has been off-air due to renovations. They plan on coming back around Feb. 5 with new technology and better communication.

The renovations are supposed to be helping the cast with communication between each team. Broadcast teacher, Jim Tarvin, and The Wolfcast crew, have invested around $6,000 into the new technology, called IFBs, or interruptible foldback.

“[With the IFBs] students will see better quality in the shows,” Tarvin said....(cont. at cphswolfpack.org)

by Jacob Herrick

Star Wars; I was so excited, I mean I was, until I actually saw it. It's not to say it was bad, it was great in the same way Jurassic World was. It was crunched by nostalgia and not much else. The leads were good, BB-8, Chewbacca, Finn and Rey (note the order of importance). But was there actually any substance behind it all? And I'm sure there will be some flak for my answer; no. I'm sure many of you have seen "Star Wars: The Force Awakens"....(cont. at cphswolfpack.org)

New Year's resolutions

by Kerry Madden

To set New Year's resolutions or not to set New Year's resolutions, that is the question. Setting goals or making promises has been a tradition to humankind since Babylonian and Roman times. Here at Cedar Park, students have been navigating the first month of the new year, some with and some without New Year's resolutions in mind. Senior Claire Cantrell is one student who is a proponent of setting resolutions....(cont. at cphswolfpack.org)

Em's Giggles

by Emilee Guernsey

Smooth pick up lines to help score a date for Valentines Day:

Are you a dementor?
'Cause you're taking my breath away.

Is your name Ariel?
Because I think we mermaid for each other.

Do you have life alert?
Because I've fallen for you and I can't get up.

If you were a transformer, you'd be Optimus Fine.

Did you just watch Star Wars?
'Cause Yoda one for me.

Did you know?
