

School NewsCelebs bring home Grand Champs

by Emilee Guernsey

The Celebs kicked their way through the Belton competition on Feb. 20 and won overall grand champions, as well as first place in soloists, line officers, social officers and more. Junior Claire Dunn was one of the soloist runner ups to the Celebs captain Mackenzie Lawrence, who took first place.

“It was awesome to see everyone’s solos and to see so many of my friends and teammates do so well this season,” Dunn said. “Mackenzie is one of my favorite people....(cont. at cphswolfpack.org)

LISD students have a COOL Week

by Collyn Burke

The idea of being an adult is terrifying. This notion fluttered through my head as I sat packed in the early morning commute on my way to the first day of my COOL Week assignment. A million thoughts popped up in my over caffeinated head, what would they expect out of me? Would they like me? How badly was I about to mess this up? I had to be an adult, and that was well, terrifying....(cont. at cphswolfpack.org)

RoboLobos build into a new season

by Anjali Sundaram

Three years ago, Robotics was introduced and formed at CPHS. Now, the organization is known throughout the school and the club has around fifty members, all split into various groups.

The Robotics team comes together to build a robot in what the team calls the “build season.” Then, they attend a state wide competition in March and compete, and if they land one of the top three spots, they move onto world... (cont. at cphswolfpack.org)

GSA and NPFH spread the love

by Avery Deen

On Friday Feb. 12, the Gay-Straight Alliance (GSA) and No Place For Hate (NPFH) clubs handed out valentines cards to students and staff around campus.

“We wanted a new project to work on and thought that the valentines would be fun and could make people’s day,” GSA president junior Cindy Orr said.

With the two clubs combined efforts, it took around four hours to make the valentines....(cont. at cphswolfpack.org)
