

School News“The Illusion” takes to the stage

by Kerry Madden

Who’s not inclined to love a good plot twist? Magic, mischievous comedy and a multitude of love interests make for an interesting turn of events in the theatre department’s upcoming main stage production of “The Illusion.” Running Oct. 30-31, the show exudes the spirit of the Halloween season.

Adapted by playwright Tony Kushner, “The Illusion” follows a father desiring to learn about his runaway son who has been gone 15 years. Desperate, and in a last effort to accomplish this, he seeks assistance of a not so normal nature....(cont. at cphswolfpack.org)

Three years of High School Invasion

by Anjali Sundaram

For the third year in a row, CPHS has won 96.7’s High School Invasion. The previous performances were Tegan and Sara, Echosmith and now Alessia Cara. The Canadian singer is known for her hit single “Here” from her album “Four Pink Walls,” which has been topping charts ever since it has hit the scene. She will be performing here on Monday, Oct. 19 during DEN... (cont. at cphswolfpack.org)

The Wolfmart’s shaky return

by Jacob Herrick

The CPHS staple grocer, the Wolfmart, has reopened, welcoming students with the warm and loving hospitality of unpaid labor. So the obvious question is; “Well, why did it close in the first place?” My response to that is the most un-sarcastic Thanks Obama, because the loss of our precious store and Ramen is the result of an LISD policy called “Smart Foods.”

The real problem, as it always is, capitalism. Competition with the cafeteria is the defining argument for anti-Wolfmart administrators....(cont. at cphswolfpack.org)

1. iHop’s new Toasted Marshmallow Hot Chocolate has people “literally crying” tears of joy on Twitter.
2. Iced Coffee from Dunkin Donuts is cheap and super tasty- you’ll probably have money left over for a donut.
3. If you don’t have the money to go out, try making hot chocolate at home and adding Hazelnut creamer.
